Introducing an exciting new edition of the index for inclusion developing learning and participation in schools
Written by Tony Booth and Mel Ainscow

- 3rd edition, substantially revised and expanded
- Includes CD
- A green edition for a sustainable planet
- A new curriculum for schools
- 2nd edition translated and used in 39 countries

Accessible, flexible and practical resource for school self-evaluation and improvement. Organised around sets of indicators and questions.

Encourages the whole school community to work together in reviewing all aspects of cultures, policies and practices in their school.

Draws together:
- values
- rights
- environmental sustainability
- restorative approaches
- health promotion
- democracy
- global citizenship

The Index helps schools to:
- put their own framework of values into action
- carry out a thorough self-evaluation
- produce a detailed school improvement plan
- empower adults and children to voice their ideas
- improve the school for staff as well as for children and families
- minimise barriers to learning and participation
- bring together work on community, global citizenship, sustainability, rights and values
- present to governors and inspectors a clear rationale for development.

Staff in primary and secondary schools have said:
“The discussion on values is the key to inclusion.”
“Thought provoking, incredibly useful, challenging document.”
“The Index made us think more clearly about things we had assumed were in place.”
“Easy to dip into or read all the way through.”
“It’s your self-evaluation done for you but in a far better way.”
“It provides an opportunity for people to be honest and improve practice.”
“It makes people feel valued.”
