

Who should attend:

People working on the complex issues of inclusion and diversity in schools, communities and workplaces. This Institute is for people who know there are no quick-fix answers and who are searching for new ways of thinking.

The organisers of the Inclusion Summer Institute 2008 believe that their best work towards inclusion is done when they nurture critical connections between kindred spirits.

Our aim for this 3-day event in June 2008, is to develop the new knowledge, practices, courage and commitment that will lead to far reaching change in our human services. Participants should expect to take 'deep dive learning journeys' to connect with the people, contexts and ideas that have the best future potential.

Process for the Institute:

This is not a 3-day 'academic' conference - we will be bringing together a unique group of thinkers and doers to create a learning community.

Daily Keynotes: We will come together for the first session each day for a keynote presentation.

Frequent Workshops: there will be morning and afternoon workshops each day led by the presenters/facilitators.

Evenings: Create Your Own Learning places - time for reflection, networking, your own MAP or PATH, food music...

On the first day, we will open the "Learning Marketplace" and fit your learning needs and the skills you bring into a format for our time together. This will allow you to invent a personal agenda - so bring the topics you are passionate about with you.

How to Book Your Place:

The fee for the full 3-day Institute is £330+VAT (£387.75) -includes lunch and refreshments daily. At this stage, we are not taking bookings for single day attendance. REDUCTION for Teams of 3 or more - £300+VAT (£352.50) per person. You are responsible for your own accommodation arrangements. There are several hotels near Trent Vineyard - we will provide you with details on receipt of your application.
